

CURRICULUM VITAE

Small-scale fisheries and fishing communities in Japan

성명(Name) : Yinji Li

소속(Affiliation) : Tokai University

이력(Professional Experiences)

Dr. Yinji Li is a marine social scientist with a Master's in Fisheries Science and a Ph.D. in Marine Science from the Tokyo University of Marine Science and Technology in Japan. She is an Associate Professor at the School of Marine Science and Technology at Tokai University. With language skills in Japanese, Korean, Mandarin, and English, her research interests and expertise lie in small-scale fisheries in Northeast Asian regions, including Japan, Korea, Mainland China, and Taiwan. Li is also the Too Big To Ignore (TBTI) Japan Research Network Director and the Japan country coordinator of the Vulnerability to Viability Global Partnership (V2V) project and a member of the board of trustees of the International Pole and Line Foundation (IPNLF).

학력(Educational Background)

Apr, 2005 - Mar, 2008

PhD in Marine Science, Tokyo University of Marine Science and Technology

Apr, 2003 - Mar, 2005

Master's in Fisheries Science, Tokyo University of Fisheries

Sep, 1996 - Jul, 2001

Bachelor's in Economics and Management, Dalian Ocean University(China)